Colt and Cora White have a rare genetic disorder. Doctors have no idea the prognosis or life span but are always surprised at how well the kids are doing. They call their genetic disorder Epileptic Encephalopathy, which is a general term for seizure disorder. Both kids have GJ feeding tubes, no food by mouth, no control over their body movements and require 100%, 24-hour care. They both love baths and it is very therapeutic for them. It helps them relax, sleep and their muscle tone.
